

Representative Thomas Weatherston

Wisconsin State Assembly, District 62

Press Release 4/10/2018

Last October I made a decision about my life and career and I have been weighing the merits of that decision ever since. I have consulted many of my friends, and have had great advice, but in the end I realize the decision is mine to make. It has been a tough decision but I have decided to not seek reelection at the end of my current term.

My life has had major changes over the last few years with April passing away, a young grandson, building a new home and getting engaged. There are many reasons why I have made this decision, most of them personal, but I will share a few of the major decision factors.

I have served my Country, my Village and now my State, it is time for another to take up the task. I may run for the Village board again but we will see. My age, I'll be 69 years old shortly after this term ends so it is time to take life a little easier. Many folks don't know this but I have no family in Wisconsin so I am looking forward to spending more time with my grandson and Colorado family.

I am proud of my service to country, state and village. I have always done my personal best to represent ALL of the people in my district.

Thank you to all that have supported me.
